It seems appropriate to dedicate this volume to those friends and experts who had agreed to provide sections for this book, but who died before their sections could be written. There are four of them: Ignatius Metil, Walter Szymansky, David W. McDowell, and Stanley Morrow, each an authority in his field, and a wonderful person who will ever remain in the respect and affection of his associates as well as those of his family.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Those who have rendered assistance to the authors and editor in putting this volume together are far too numerous to mention individually. Those who have given permission for the use of previously published material, and those who have permitted our use of their drawings and illustrations are acknowledged individually at the appropriate spots. However there is one person who by dedication and selfless work has merited special mention, and that is Sylvia Levy, who has been of inestimable assistance to the editor in rearranging and retyping corrected material for publication.
